Our blog is updated several times a week, and we are continuously uploading new research papers, government submissions, and resources of interest to faculty members. This is a subscriber-based listserv that you can use to post questions, articles, or other resources related to faculty bargaining. It is often where information is sent out on recent settlements in the sector, and other relevant bargaining updates. Normally it is a fairly low volume listserv. It mainly includes current and past members of the OCUFA Collective Bargaining Committee. You can subscribe by contacting Kimiko Inouye at kinouye@ocufa.on.ca. Once you are subscribed, you will receive an email notifying that you have been added.

We Teach Ontario

We Teach Ontario is OCUFA's ongoing public campaign highlighting the essential contributions made by university faculty to our province. Right now, the campaign is working to build public awareness of the important work done by contract faculty in the face of difficult working conditions. Visit www.weteachontario.ca to submit, view, and share the profiles of contract faculty across Ontario. You can also find the campaign at www.facebook.com/weteachontario or @WeTeachOntario.
